MORSELS FROM MORANBURG.

Items of Interest From One of Mason's Mos Picturesque Villages.

We have quite a good Sunday school at last.

Mrs. Jacob Marsh is quite ill with rheumatism.

Miss Sallie Hughes, who has been quite ill, is some better.

Rev. Rapp filled his appointment at this place Sunday evening.

Mrs. Will Wells and daughter Nannie are recovering from their recent illness. Corn and melons are looking very well, considering the dry weather. Gardens are needing rain badly. Mrs. Amelia Bendel and daughters Regina and Edna were pleasant guests of Mrs. N. Richardson Sunday. The continued drought is injuring the tobacco plants. Unless rain comes soon there will not be much set in this vicinity. Mr. Willie Robinson of this place, who is to wed Miss Lizzie Riley of Maysville today, will reside with his parents this Mr. N. Richardson and son have finished setting 18 acres of tobacco on the

Keith farm in Charleston Bottom, using tobacco setter. Two hundred barrels of water were used in the planting. What was supposed to be a meteor was seen to fall by a number of persons in Charleston Bottem. The falling was followed by a low, rumbling noise like dis tant thunder. There was nothing visible where it was seen to fall.

EXPLOSION OF A SHELL

without delay, as when the present sup. Damage by One of These Missiles on the New York.

During the bombardment of San Juan de Porto Rico on May 12th, the New York was struck ence by a fourteen centimetre shell at a distance of about 5,500 yards. The shell came over the stern of the ship and struck an iron stanchion three inches in thickness, which was broken short off at the point of contact. The shell went on for a distance of about fifteen feet and exploded in a wooden boat, covered with canvas. The boat was demolished, the lighter planking being badly splintered and driven down ward and forward against an iron steam winch. The oars in the boat were broken, and one piece was driven for ward along the spar deck, but did no damage. The canvas covering the boat was torn and rent into shreds by the force of the explosion and by splinters passing through it, and then caught fire, showing that canvas under such conditions will not stop splinters. The shell itself burst into many pieces, varying from the size of a pea to large pieces weighing about five pounds. The direc tion these fragments took was forward, downward, upward and to both sides, many of them going over the ship's side, others passing through the copper venti lators and smokepipes and doing but little damage.

The fragments that went downward and forward struck about the port eightinch waist gun, where there were twelve men stationed, killing one man and injuring several others. The man killed, Wiedenmark, was struck by a piece of shell about two inches square by one inch thick.

It entered the left side of his neck, near the angle of the jaw, severed the blood vessels, proceeded upward and backward into his brain, probably injuring the medula, and lodged under the skin just beneath the occipital protuberance. The man fell forward, losing consciousness immediately. His respiration ceased as soon as he was struck, but his heart continued to beat feebly for about five minutes, when all signs of life disap-

Another fragment of shell of about the same size struck a man named Fettman on the anterior inner surface of the left thigh, about three inches above the knee, and went through the limb, taking a backward and downward course. The tor Deboe was led to believe that Wilhoit femur was shattered into numerous frag ments, and the muscles were torn considerably in the track of the wound.

The effect of the missile on the bone was peculiar in that the bone was not only splintered for about three inches of its length, but it was also pulverized, hundreds of minute pieces of bone being embedded in the muscles. At the point truding from the wound, showing that the ragged piece of steel drew muscular fibers and fascia along with it. The leg was operated on and a portion of femur resected, the splinters and crumbs of bone were removed, the fragments were trimproceedings, and there is no more wrathy med off and wired together, and through man in Washington tonight than Senator and through drainage was established, the limb being put in a finistraled plaster dressing. The wound at last accounts was healing by primary union, and there is every reason to believe that the leg

Another man was struck in the left leg by a piece of shell about 1 inch by 1-inch. It entered the leg about its middle on the outer side, went inward and forward, grooving the interior surface of the tibia. The fragments of bone were taken out of the leg by the piece of shell. There were several other minor injuries. Pieces of shell struck several men, but did no damage. One man felt something hot on his breast, and on investigation he found a small piece of shell that had burned its way through his clothing and reached his skin. The fragments of shell were all mud drum at Cincinnati, passed up with hot, as was shown by burnt wood and canvas. The men isjured by the shell all said they felt a burning, stinging sen sation about their wounds, and in some cases the clothing was scorched.

The shell receives a great deal of heat from the friction it incurs in leaving the gun; some of this heat is lost through radiation in its flight through the air, more heat is developed on the impact of WHAT SURGEON SPEAR SAYS. the shell, and still more energy takes the form of heat when the missile explodes, making the fragments hot enough to set fire to wood.

> All of the wounds made by the shell were treated with antiseptics, but they all were sluggish in healing, due to the lowered vitality and burning of the injured parts.
